WHAT-HAPPEN'

The March issue of the "H & T" was delayed by a wildcat postal strike that rippled through the Canadian postal system early in March. Post Offices in Toronto, Ottawa, Hamilton, and other cities in Ontario experienced first class mail delays averaging three weeks. Local post unions and the Canadian Post Office have been reported to be working on a settlement. As of April 1st the first class rate in Canada is now 14¢ (was 12¢). The postal rate increase will generate more revenue badly needed in order to maintain current Canadian mail services. (Sounds like the Canadian Post Office is learning their lessons from the U.S.P.S.)
