Editor's Observations

This issue comes to you as the annual ROPEX issue. It is hoped that members will find it useful.

I would like to place content here that you would like to read. I have found this difficult since I am unaware of the many areas members collect. Articles could be obtained from outside sources as well. It would be nice if it first came from our membership. However, if this is not to be then I will proceed with an alternate solution in filling our pages.

You should find somewhere in this publication further mention of ROPEX and its particulars. You should also note the March 1 cutoff for the banquet.

I would like to thank all those who contributed to this issue. You may not specifically realize that you have but I have tried to include suitable content from you here.

Please note that BUFPEX precedes out show this year — March 1-3. We are hopeful that our members will be supportive of their show.

The R. S. Stamp Company, also known as Bob and Elli Steeb, will be at BUFPEX on March 1-3 and ROPEX on March 8-10.

They have indicated that ordered supplies are available. Do give them a call with your order so that you will not have to wait.

How Teddy Bears Got Their Start

Who knows exactly how Teddy Bears got their name and their collectible status? That is to say nothing about their ability to convey such warmth to so many individuals for over a 100 years now?

It is known that there are at least two families that had a hand in creating such a stuffed critter. One German and one Russian. The U.S. media of Teddy Roosevelt's day helped spread this collecting phenomenon we see today.

Little did anyone know just what kind of craze was being created. It is likely each one of us at one time possessed some sort of stuffed animal for comfort. It seems only natural that it be a bear or some related forest animal.

The imagination does fantastic things. Look to any sort of collectible and you will find a bear among the topics. From a miniature bear, porcelain, a painting, cast in some metal and vary in size, etc. The kinds and topics that they will appear in stagger the imagination.
